

Privacy Policy

When you use PSILY services, you trust us with your information. This Privacy Policy is meant to help you understand what data we collect, why we collect it, and what we do with it. This is important; we hope you will take time to read it carefully.

Whenever you use our services, we aim to provide you with access to your personal information. If that information is wrong, we strive to give you ways to update it quickly or to delete it – unless we have to keep that information for legitimate business or legal purposes.

We aim to maintain our services in a manner that protects information from accidental or malicious destruction. Because of this, after you delete information from our services, we may not immediately delete residual copies from our active servers and may not remove information from our backup systems.

The creation and use of multiple PSILY accounts

Don't create or use multiple accounts to abuse PSILY policies, bypass PSILY account limitations, circumvent filters or otherwise subvert restrictions placed on your account. (For example, if you've been blocked by another user or have had your PSILY account disabled due to abuse, don't create a replacement account that engages in similar activity.)

You also aren't allowed to create PSILY accounts by automated means, or buy PSILY accounts from, sell or re-sell them to, or trade them with others.

Malware

Don't use PSILY to transmit viruses, malware, worms, defects, Trojan horses, corrupted files or any other items of a destructive or deceptive nature. In addition, don't distribute content that harms or interferes with the operation of networks, servers or other infrastructure belonging to PSILY or others.

Fraud, phishing and other deceptive practices

You may not access another user's PSILY account without their explicit permission. Don't use PSILY to trick, mislead or deceive other users into sharing information under false pretences.

Don't phish for users' data, such as login information, passwords, financial details or identification numbers, or use PSILY as part of a scheme to defraud others.

Child safety

PSILY has a zero-tolerance policy against child sexual abuse imagery. If we become aware of such content, we will report it to the US National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, as required by law. We may also take disciplinary action, including termination, against the PSILY accounts of those involved.

Copyright

Respect copyright laws. Don't infringe on the intellectual property rights of others, including patent, trademark, trade secret or other proprietary rights. You are also not allowed to encourage or induce others to violate intellectual property rights. You can report copyright infringement to PSILY by using this form.

Harassment

Don't use PSILY to harass, intimidate or threaten others. Anyone found to be using PSILY for these purposes may have their account disabled.

Illegal activity

Keep it legal. Don't use PSILY to promote, organize or engage in unlawful activities.

Policy enforcement

You can report abuse by using this form. PSILY may disable accounts that are found to be in violation of these policies. If your account is disabled, and you believe that it was a mistake, please follow the instructions on this page.

Collection of IP addresses and browser data

PSILY will not transfer personal data to third parties, for example advertisers. It is necessary for PSILY to collect your IP address for your interaction with various parts of the PSILY website. Your IP address is the identifier for your computer when you are using the internet.

For instance, PSILY collects and stores your IP address when you log into the PSILY website. As part of our security for PSILY, PSILY uses this information when we attempt to detect and prevent fraudulent transactions. We store your IP address for security and audit purposes. Your IP address will not be used by us or released to any third party except in the case of security, inappropriate behavior or fraud issues, such as unauthorized access to your or our computer systems or fraudulent transactions. PSILY reserves the right to use your IP address to report breaches to the authorities (police).

Cookies

We use "cookies" as a fundamental part of our interaction with your Internet browser. The purpose is to provide you with better and more customized service and with a more effective website.

A "cookie" is a small text file placed on your computer by our web page server. A cookie can later be retrieved by our webpage servers. The most important function of cookies is to distinct one user from the other. A cookie also ensures that when you logged in, you remain logged in while using the website.

PSILY uses cookies for two different purposes. We allocate a cookie to each Internet browser that visits the PSILY website. This cookie does not allow us to collect personally identifiable information about you. We use this cookie:

- to allocate an PSILY identification number to your Internet browser (but we cannot identify you from this number);

- to determine if you have previously visited the PSILY website;
- to identify pages you have accessed;
- and for security purposes.
- ook enkele andere functionaliteiten op deze website maken gebruik van cookies die niet van PSILY afkomstig zijn. Denk hierbij aan de integratie met Twitter en Facebook. Met betrekking tot die cookies gelden de algemene voorwaarden en privacy policies van derden.

Most of the PSILY website operates by using this type of cookies. Accordingly, if you wish to make full use of the PSILY website, it is required that you accept cookies.

PSILY also uses cookies for secure services (that is, an area where PSILY uses encryption) on the PSILY website. These cookies are used for a variety of purposes, including for security and personalization reasons. If your browser is configured to reject all cookies you will be unable to use secure services on the PSILY website that require cookies in order to participate. In accordance with the Dutch Law (based on a EU directive) we ask you to opt in for those cookies the moment you visit our website for the first time.

Notice: the rejection or deletion of cookies only affects the computer or browser on which you execute the rejection or deletion. In case you make use of multiple computers or browsers, you have to repeat the rejection or deletion for every computer or browser.

Emails and communications

Service emails

The PSILY team does not like spam and will never send you unsolicited emails. But there are some emails that we will need to send you to provide you with a good service. A full list of the types of emails you will receive to help you use the Service most effectively are shown below:

- Activation email - contains a unique link to activate the account and to verify your email address.
- Reset emails - contains a unique link allowing you to reset your password or your secret question or answer for your account.
- Service e-mails - if we need to notify you about changes to the service.
- Closure email - if you submit a request for your account to be closed, you will receive an email requesting confirmation of the closure with a unique link to close your account. The same email is sent within three months. If no reply is received, your account will be closed after three months.
- Support request - if you send a support request, you will receive a response via email.

Information emails

As well as these Service Emails, you can also opt to receive what we call Information emails. This is news about or are new features on PSILY. Information emails genuinely help you make the most of the website. A list of the types of emails you will receive to help you use the Service most effectively are shown below:

- Invitation emails - inviting you to become a trustee for someone. These emails contain a link to connect and you can either confirm or reject the invitation to connect.
- Reminder emails - remind you about completing your registration, or your pending trustee invitations.
- PSILY news or new features - we use this regular email newsletter to notify you about what's new on the website, ask your opinion, and tell you about services you might not be using yet. We only send an email newsletter when there is something worthwhile to tell you about.

Access and correct your personal data

At any time you can access your personal information store on PSILY by logging on to PSILY using your personal PSILY credentials. On the PSILY website it is possible to modify and or delete your personal settings and personal data.
